About Fortified Rice Kernel

Fortified Rice Kernel (FRK) is an innovative and nutritionally enhanced form of rice designed to address widespread micronutrient deficiencies. Created by blending rice flour with essential vitamins and minerals such as iron, zinc, vitamin A, and folic acid, these kernels are molded to resemble natural rice grains.

Once mixed with regular rice in a specified ratio, fortified rice becomes an effective means of delivering vital nutrients to large populations, particularly in government schemes like PDS and midday meal programs.
